Gardening Tips for September in Zone 5 (Redfield)

Submitted by Janell Ketelsen, Bill Hotchkiss, & Carolyn Wilson – all Redfield Master Gardeners

Fall is teasing us – three or four days in the upper 80's then a week in the low 70's. To be honest I am tired of messy garden plants, weeds in the garden beds, and tomatoes that are split. It seems like I am pulling up tired plants and putting them in the compost bins while putting weeds in the garbage bins to go to the landfill. The garden is getting "put to bed" for tis year although I still have a few plants that are producing.

One of my plantings that are doing well is the Black Beauty eggplants. I planted way too may of this variety and can hardly give them away, I guess they will end up at the food bank. We are also getting an abundance of apples – they too will go to the food bank or to the Stuart Library for those who like to make apple deserts.

Along with growing apples comes the task of ground cleanup. Every morning, I scoop up apples that have dropped from the trees and put them in the compost bins. Picking them up will minimize disease pressures next year with the new growing season

Gardening "To Do" Tips by Month for Redfield, IA

Janell's tips for October:

- Put potting soil in a place where it will not freeze so it will be available if you want to repot plants or start your plants in the spring.
- Flower bulbs need to be planted at this time
- Tulip, Iris and other spring and summer flowering perennials can be divided and have their foliage cut back then replant and water.
- Mint, dill, and other herbs should be harvested. Dry or freeze these herbs to preserve them.
- Remove, cut and compost asparagus tops after they turn brown and have died back. Another option is to leave the dead tops to provide shelter for animals during the winter. Burn them off in the spring before the new shoots emerge from the soil.
- October is a good time to amend your soil. Add leaves and or compost to increase the organic material in your soil. Save wood ashes, this will increase the phosphorus, potassium, and calcium in your soil. Use these ashes in your vegetable gardens and flower beds.
- Dig Dahlia plants and save them in your basement in a brown paper bag, Check once a month and spritz with water to keep moist
- Clean, sharpen, and oil (sparingly) your tools for the winter

Carolyn's tips for October:

- Watch the weather and harvest any remaining summer produce like beans, eggplant, peppers and tomatoes before a hard frost
- By October, most pumpkins, winter squash, and gourds are ready to be harvested. The fruit is ready to harvest when the vines start to dry. It works best to cut the stem with garden pruners; this should be done before the first frost.
- Fall is the best time to plant most trees and shrubs because it is cooler, but still warm enough to promote growth. As long as the ground is not frozen, you can plant. Be sure to water the new tree at planting and afterward. Use mulch to help retain moisture, but do not put it up against the tree
- Put protection around young trees that are susceptible to deer or rabbit damage
- Since many ornamental grasses are attractive in the garden during the winter, they are usually cut back in the late winter or early spring. Not cutting them in the fall also helps protect the crown throughout the winter.
- Drain your hoses and empty the birdbath before a hard frost.
- Potted perennials can be buried in an empty part of the vegetable garden or surrounded with a thick layer of straw to get them through the cold winter months
- Some bulbs need to be dug up and stored for the winter and replanted in the spring. This includes dahlias, cannas, caladiums, gladiolus, elephants' ears, and calla lilies. To dig dahlia tubers, (which will be a large clump), use a spade or a fork spade. These are to be dug after the frost has killed the foliage and leaves are yellow or dying back.
- SAVE SEEDS – from favorite self-pollinating, non-hybrid flowers such as marigolds by allowing the flower heads to mature. Lay seeds on newspaper and turn them as they dry. Store the dry seeds in glass jars or envelopes in a cool, dry, dark place.
- Leave seeds on asters, sunflowers, and cosmos for the birds to eat throughout the winter.
- Bring in houseplants when nighttime temperatures fall to 55 degrees F. Wash off pots and foliage. Soak the pot in a tub of lukewarm water for about 15 minutes to force insects out. Another option is to treat plants with a systemic insecticide at least a week before taking it inside. Check to see if roots are coming through the bottom of the pot, and if it is so, the plant must be replanted. If the plants have gotten leggy through the summer, remove them from the container and prune the top and bottom equally. Repot in a clean pot with fresh potting soil.
- Mow until the grass stops growing. Grass that is too long is more likely to become damaged over the winter.

MAP YOUR GARDEN (THIS YEAR). THIS WILL HELP PLAN NEXT YEARS PLANTING!!

The Raccoon River Valley Trail at the Redfield Depot

Submitted by Louise Kipping

We wound up September with the depot being the starting point for a fund-raiser – a round-trip ride between Redfield and Adel – to support the “Bridge Us Back” efforts by the Raccoon River Valley Trail Association. Rain threatened, but the riders started off with enthusiasm and the weather remained manageable during the ride. We started them off from the depot with a good selection of our cookies and baked goods available to them! More information on trail activities is available on their website – raccoonrivervalleytrail.org

We will remain open for the month of October with a volunteer host (and cookies!) available for a short time each week-end day. A big thank-you and appreciation goes out to the volunteers who hosted at the depot during this season.

The trail itself is open year-round. See you next spring at the depot!

Redfield Clinic News

Submitted by Ed Friedman

Measles are continuing to spread primarily among the unvaccinated. According to the Center for Disease Control more than 1,500 cases of measles have been confirmed in the United States. Sadly three individuals have died from measles including 2 children in West Texas. Measles are highly contagious but preventable by vaccination. 185 individuals with measles have required hospitalization.

By the year 2000 measles had been eliminated from the United States thru vaccination. The only reported cases were found in people who move here from other countries.

The incubation period for measles is usually 7 to 14 days, after exposure. Symptoms include fever, cough, watery eyes and runny nose, followed by a rash in 3-5 days. Complications from measles include croup, pneumonia, ear infections, hearing loss, blindness and swelling of the brain. The measles vaccination is highly effective, up to 97% protective.

A hand, foot and mouth disease outbreak has been occurring in our schools. It is a viral disease characterized by head congestion and blisters on the hands, feet and in the mouth. There is no specific treatment other than treating the symptoms though the mouth blisters can be quite sore. Fortunately complications are rare. No vaccine is available for prevention.

Scattered COVID -19 infections are occurring in our area. COVID boosters and flu vaccinations are available at clinics and at pharmacies. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

HAPPY FALL YOU ALL!!

Thanks to those of you who have helped out at the depot this summer - we are winding down now! We need volunteers for the last week-end of September coming up and for almost all of the October week-ends. Remember, we are only staffing one shift per week-end day from 10am - 2pm! After that we will be closing the depot until next spring.

The trail itself is open for riding and walking year- round! We had fun this past week-end as the crowd riding the "Bridge Us Back" fund raiser ride took off from here and gradually worked their ways back from Adel a few hours later.

Here are the sign-up links to use:

September - volunteersignup.org/RBFMR

October - volunteersignup.org/74XHH

Unless you have a new cookie recipe you were wanting to try I think we have enough in the freezer to maybe make it to the end, so you can leave the cookie space blank when you sign up!

Kids Shop FREE!! For Mom & Dad

We will be holding the 12th Annual Shopping Event for the children of our community during the Redfield Winterfest on Saturday, December 6, 2025, from 9:00 to 2:00 at the Redfield Middle School. This event will allow the children to shop (at no charge) for their parents' Christmas gift. Each child will be able to choose one item for their mom and one item for their dad. The children will then be able to have their gift wrapped! We look forward to this event each year but we need your help to make this possible.

We ask that you donate small clean garage sale type items. Some ideas include; picture frames, lotions, perfumes, wallets, purses, jewelry, baskets, candles, tools, home decor, scarves, ties, books, puzzles, knick knacks, or anything else you feel would make a great gift. (Please no clothing.) Wrapping paper, gift bags, gift labels and tape would also be appreciated.

Any items you have to donate would be greatly appreciated; whether you have a box of items or just a few things. Donations can be dropped off at TK's Auto in Redfield (1002 Taylor Street). Any items left over after the shopping event will be donated to Hope Ministries or to another event like this one.

If you have any questions please contact Jolene or Sandy. We truly appreciate your assistance in making this event possible each year for the little ones in our community. They enjoy it SO much!

GENERAL INFORMATION

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water posed a health risk. More information about contaminants or potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. REDFIELD WATER WORKS is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Our water supply has completed a service line inventory. Please contact us for information regarding the inventory and how you can access the results.

SOURCE WATER ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

This water supply obtains its water from the sand and gravel of the Alluvial aquifer. The Alluvial aquifer was determined to be highly susceptible to contamination because the characteristics of the aquifer and overlying materials provide little protection from contamination at the land surface. The Alluvial wells will be highly susceptible to surface contaminants such as leaking underground storage tanks, contaminant spills, and excess fertilizer application. A detailed evaluation of your source water was completed by the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, and is available from the Water Operator at 515-371-1364.

CONTACT INFORMATION

For questions regarding this information or how you can get involved in decisions regarding the water system, please contact REDFIELD WATER WORKS at 515-371-1364.
